

成都七中高 2020 级二诊模拟考试 (英语) 答案

听力: 1—5 CBABA 61—0 ACBAC 11—15 ACAAC 16—20 BBCCB

阅读: 21—23 CDB 24—27 DBCB 28—31 BCDB 32—35 DBCA

七选五: 36—40 CDBAG

完形: 41—45 BACBD 46—50 ABDDC 51—55 BACDB 56—60 BCAAD

语填: 61. was approved 62. to strengthen 63. and 64. laboratories

65. in 66. seen 67. laying 68. whose

69. prosperity 70. undoubtedly

短文改错:

During the past ten years, I Λ suffered from terrible headaches. And it seems to be getting bad. Late last night, I got a sudden headache that was worse than all the others. It was so terrible that I could hardly bear them. Although I took all kinds of painkillers, but I didn't feel any better. It seemed that there was nothing it else I could do, because I called my doctor and asked him to come over. One of our neighbor happened to so neighbors/neighbours be with us at the time. He was not a doctor, but he offered his help, "Do you mind if I try a special kind of traditional Chinese treatment for you? These needles might help with your headache." I agree. He quickly on agreed took out a few needles from his bag. Without the moment's delay, he put a few needles into the skin on my head in several different places. Before long, I felt complete good.

have worse

a

completely

书面表达

Possible Version:

An English Editor for "Traditional Chinese Culture" Wanted

The "Traditional Chinese Culture" column, which is intended to help readers know more about traditional Chinese paper cuttings, Beijing Opera as well as folk music and so on, is looking for an English editor.

Some qualifications are needed for this position. First, we need someone who is fond of and familiar with traditional Chinese culture. Besides, being an English editor requires you have a good command of English, especially written English. In addition, you will be preferred if you have editing experience.

If you think you are fit for it, please send your resume to www.schoolenglishnewspaper.com before June 10.

听力原文:

Text 1

W: Dr. Potter, is that you? I didn't expect to see one of my teachers here.

M: Hello Caroline. Yes, I visit this gallery quite often with my wife.

W: I must introduce you to my father. He would be glad to meet you.

Text 2

M: Are you looking forward to Howard's wedding this weekend?

W: Yes and no. It will be great to see everyone, but I don't really want to dress up when the temperature is going to be boiling. I won't be comfortable.

Text 3

W: I've had such a lovely time staying with you. I will really miss you.

M: We'll miss you too. And we'll be happy to see you again whenever you want to come back for a visit.

W: Oh well, I'd better go now. Thanks for everything.

Text 4

M: Any time you look up in the sky, you can see at least three planes. Just try it.

W: I don't believe that — but let's see. Oh yes... In fact, I can see one more than that.

M: I once counted ten.

Text 5

W: We could call Carrie. Maybe she'll have a game of badminton with us.

M: She's away on holiday. What about Lucy? I know she plays tennis, but what about badminton?

W: I think she'll play. If not, I'll ask my sister to join us.

Text 6

M: Mary, I have to find a place to live in. The house owner wants my room for her daughter who's moving back to town.

W: Oh, bad luck! This will be your third time to move. I heard that Josh was looking for a roommate. You know Josh, don't you?

M: Yes, we met at your birthday party and we play in the same soccer club.

W: That could be a possibility, Sam.

Text 7

W: Hi Kevin, are you feeling OK?

M: No, not so good at the moment. Many people at school have had a cold and now I'm getting it.

W: I can tell. You sound a little different.

M: I felt OK yesterday. I had a good sleep and no headache, but now I feel terrible.

W: You should go home and rest.

M: I think you're right. I won't be able to study while I feel like this.

W: Have you taken anything for it?

M: I haven't had any medicine but my mom made me a hot lemon drink. She said I looked very pale.

W: I hope I don't catch it. I've had a runny nose myself recently.

M: You'd better keep your distance from me.

Text 8

M: Hello! Can I speak to Susan, please?

W: Yes, speaking. Is that you, Tom?

M: Yes, it is. I am going to New Zealand in two weeks, and my wife Jane is going with me.

W: Oh, how lucky you are! How long are you going for?

M: For a couple of months, maybe half a year. My boss wants me to help set up a branch office there. Susan, you have been to New Zealand on holiday several times. Can you give us some suggestions, or just tell us about that country?

W: I'd love to. We can have a talk sometime.

M: Why not come over for dinner this weekend? My wife wants to meet you as well.

W: All right. What about Saturday?

M: OK. See you at 6:00 p.m., this coming Saturday. Goodbye!

W: See you then. Bye.

Text 9

W: Do you mind if I eat my lunch at your table?

M: Of course not. Be my guest.

W: Thank you. I'm Li Jing.

M: Hi Li Jing, I'm Martin. Pleased to meet you. Have you just started at university?

W: Yes. What about you?

M: I'm in my second year now. Where are you from?

W: Guangzhou, China.

M: Oh, you're a long way from home. How are you enjoying it so far?

W: Great. But everything is different and it's hard to find my way round. Today I was looking for the library, but I walked into a professor's office instead.

M: Ha-ha, don't worry. I think we've all done silly things like that. You'll soon get used to things.

W: Have you ever been to China?

M: No, but I would love to go. It seems to be a very beautiful and fascinating place.

W: It certainly is. This is the first time that I have traveled overseas.

M: Oh really? I've been to Vietnam and Thailand.

W: Did you go there to study?

M: No, my parents gave me some money as a reward for getting into this university, so I decided to spend it on seeing some of the world.

W: You were very lucky.

M: Yes, I was — and it was great. I think everyone should have the chance to travel. It opens your eyes to different things and to different ways of life.

W: Yes, I am learning a lot just being here.

Text 10

Good afternoon, listeners. This is Dennis Parker in the newsroom of Central 125, your favorite radio station for local news, weather and traffic reports. First up today, at a press conference this morning, Emma Stanbury, director of the Central Hospital, announced that they would be opening a new women and children's unit to serve the city's growing population. The existing hospital has served the city for 32 years and also as a teaching facility for doctors and nurses. According to Ms. Stanbury, the work on building the new unit will start next month and it will be ready to treat patients in around 18 months.

Later today, the city's Century Bridge is due to reopen after six months of work to repair damage caused by last year's floods. The reopening should help deal with many of the traffic problems in the city.

And now the weather and traffic news. Because of the heavy rain last night, traffic jams in the city are worse than usual today. Several main roads are blocked by flood water. Luckily, there have been no reports of injuries. However, the police are advising drivers to be careful until conditions get back to normal. No more heavy rain is expected, so there's a good chance that things will improve soon. We'll be back in an hour with a report on preparations for the city's annual cultural festival, plus, of course, all the latest news. I'm Dennis Parker in the newsroom of Central 125.

锦宏教育
Jinhong Education